

Heather Bennett is Corporate Counsel for W.G. Yates & Sons Construction Company, one of the 50 largest building contractor groups in the United States. In her capacity as Corporate Counsel, Heather works with several different types of professionals in various aspects of the construction industry, such as owners, lenders, subcontractors, and suppliers. She takes a lead role in contract negotiation, dispute resolution, and in-company training.

Heather earned her Bachelor of Arts Degree from the University of Mississippi in 1998 and her law degree from Emory University School of Law in Atlanta, Georgia in 2001. Prior to joining Yates approximately 11 years ago, she was in private practice in Dallas, Texas. Heather still maintains her law license in Texas and is also licensed to practice law in Mississippi. She currently serves on the Executive Committee of the Business Law Section of the Mississippi Bar.

In her free time, Heather is a Family Ministry teacher with her church, serves the local community through the Junior League of Jackson, and acts as the Risk Advisor for her former social sorority at Ole Miss. She lives in Jackson with her husband, Russell, and their three children.
